Protective Behaviours

There is nothing so awful that we can't talk about it
Everybody has the right to feel safe all of the time

When we think about the safety of children, we need to look at two keys areas:

1. that children understand and recognise when they are not feeling safe
2. that children know who to turn to when they don't feel safe.

In light of National Child Protection Week, the Office of Safeguarding: Prevention and Response Service has developed a number of online resources specifically designed for each age group to help educate parents, and children and young people about protective behaviours including healthy relationships, sexual development and risk taking.
